UNDERGRADUATE CERTIFICATE PROGRAM IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

In order to receive a Certificate in Business Administration, students must complete at least 18 units of courses from a selected concentration/field. Eleven concentrations/fields are offered in the certificate program: General Management, Nonprofit Organization Management, Executive Management, Human Resources Management, International Business, Accounting, Finance, Marketing, Computer Information Systems, Small Business/Entrepreneurship, and Quantitative Analysis/Analytical Methods. Additional concentrations may be offered if necessary to facilitate special needs.

GRADUATE COURSES: MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (MBA)

The MBA program is designed to have a completion time of two years for full-time students, although students who study during summer sessions may graduate earlier if all graduation criteria are met. Students are required to complete 15 units of prerequisites, 21 units of core courses, at least 9 units of the selected concentration courses, 3 units of capstone courses, and 6 units of electives to graduate. The requirement of the 15 units of prerequisites may be waived if a student has taken relevant courses in previous studies at degree level. All students must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or higher. No comprehensive examination, thesis or foreign language is required. Concentrations are offered in Computer Information Systems, International Business, Finance, and Nonprofit Organization Management. Each student must complete an internship or field study in his/her concentration. A maximum of 6 (six) graduate-level units in Business Administration at another college or university may be applied to the MBA at the University of the West.

The curriculum emphasizes

- Differences in cultures as reflecting ways of management or solving problems,
- Practical or hands-on experience as incorporated closely to theoretical knowledge in courses syllabi,
- Business ethic including cause-effect analysis and responsibility toward self and society.

Graduate Courses: Executive Master of Business Administration (EMBA)

The EMBA program intends to educate middle- and upper-level managers from a cross-functional and cross-cultural perspective and develop them into well-rounded managers with strategic thinking skills. The program is designed to have a completion time of three semesters of full-time study. Students need at least 42 semester units to graduate, including 30 units in core courses, 3 units in the capstone course, 6 units in required courses and 3 units in electives.

The MBA and EMBA programs were created not only to provide more in-depth technical studies in specialized fields, but also to address the issues of management in different cultural contexts and ethical aspect in decision-making to prepare men and women for leadership positions in for-profit and nonprofit organizations. The two-year MBA program and one-year EMBA program pay particular attention to cultural diversity within an organization and to cultural differences in different countries and teach students how to effectively and responsibly manage such differences. In order to carry out this mission, the MBA and EMBA programs educate students in a friendly and caring learning community and in small, interactive classes, where they learn, acquire knowledge, skills and responsibility spirit, and form attitudes and values appropriate for leading and serving in a global society. The programs build on the University's strengths in cross-cultural studies and community service based on Buddhist values of excellence, self cultivation and responsibility.

The MBA and EMBA programs are aimed at providing a student with the following knowledge and abilities to conduct successfully a business/an organization, as an owner, a manager, a specialist, or a consultant:

1. Mastery of technical skills in the selected areas of expertise.
2. Broadly required managerial skills: interpersonal and conceptual skills.
3. A deep understanding of how to do business in the U.S.
4. An integrated body of knowledge of business operations and management.
5. Competence in organizing, planning, leading and controlling a meeting, a group or an organization.
6. Ability to diagnose organizational problems, and prescribe ways to solve them.
7. Capacity to link concepts and situations globally, and set up a vision and a sound strategy for an organization.
8. Competence to design an effective management style that incorporates not only factors of an adequate leadership style, but also concerns of morality, ethical values, and social responsibilities.
9. Ability to manage business and deal with people under different cultural settings.
10. Capability to deal with critical situations such as difficult times and trouble spots.

The Post-MBA certificate programs promote lifelong learning and help participants further their education and advance their careers. The programs enable those who have already earned a master's degree in business administration, or a similar advanced degree, to earn a certificate in one of UWest's eleven professional tracks by completing a set of six targeted courses, providing in-depth knowledge, practical skills, and first-hand experience.

The graduate-level certificate programs in Business Administration help participants further their education and advance their careers. The programs enable those who have already earned a Bachelor's degree in business administration or other majors, to earn a certificate in one of UWest's professional tracks by completing a set of six targeted courses, providing in-depth knowledge, practical skills, and first-hand experience.

MBA Concentrations and Course Requirements

Four concentrations are offered in the MBA program: Computer Information Systems, International Business, Finance, and Nonprofit Organization Management. The carefully crafted concentrations educate students from a cross-functional and cross-cultural perspective and from an ethical emphasis.

FACULTY
Sharon Chen, Beverly Bond Cox, David T. Horner, Paula Horner, Chia-Wen Winnie Hsieh, Hsinglu Jerry Kao, Hua Wen

Psychology is the study of individual human cognition and behavior across the lifespan. The Psychology Program at University of the West additionally emphasizes the dimensions of multicultural and cross cultural influence. Furthermore, course offerings in Psychology at the University of the West include introductory and advanced instruction in not only Western, but also Eastern systems of psychological theory and practice.

Additionally, the program was designed to promote innovative critical thinkers in order to meet the needs of a dynamic and complex global community. This is achieved in part by our culturally diverse faculty and staff’s commitment to cultivate an appreciation of cultural differences.

And lastly, consistent with the mission of University of the West, we aim not only to provide and cultivate an exceptional level of knowledge and skills to our students, but also aspire to provide a whole person education by nurturing social responsibility and integrity in all future endeavors.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN PSYCHOLOGY

The learning outcomes for the BA Psychology degree are based on the 10 optimal expectation guidelines presented by the American Psychological Association’s Guidelines for the Undergraduate Psychology Major. These outcomes reflect the knowledge and skill sets undergraduates are expected to acquire during their studies at University of the West as a psychology major.

In keeping with the graduation requirements of University of the West, The Bachelor of Arts in Psychology requires the completion of 120 semester units of coursework, with a minimum grade-point average of 2.0. The 120 units include a minimum of 48 units in General Education, of which 9 units must be upper division courses. Forty-two (42) units must be taken in Psychology, of which 36 must be upper division courses, and 30 units of electives. Furthermore, 30 semester units must be completed at the University of the West, of which 24 must be upper division courses.

Student Learning Outcome Goals

Goal 1: Knowledge Base of Psychology:

- Students will demonstrate familiarity with the major concepts, theoretical perspectives, empirical findings, and historical trends in psychology.
- Students completing the psychology major will be able to communicate basic knowledge of psychology.
- Students completing the psychology major will be able to describe and provide examples of the main concepts and theories of the major perspectives of psychology.

MASTER OF ARTS IN PSYCHOLOGY

Multicultural Counseling with Generalist Focus or Buddhist Psychology Track

Minimum of 48 units required

The Masters level Psychology Program at University of the West prepares students for careers in a wide variety of applied counseling and consultation settings. Furthermore, the psychology program is designed to meet the pre-requirements for the Marriage and Family Therapy (MFT) license.

The Multicultural Counseling MA program is based on regulations provided by the California Board of Behavioral Sciences and on guidelines suggested by the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy and the California Association of Marriage and Family Therapists. Coursework is designed to prepare the student for the California MFT license examinations. More information about the MFT license can be found at <http://www.bbs.ca.gov>.

Unique to University of the West is a Multicultural Generalist focus, as well as a one-of-a-kind Buddhist Psychology track. In such a globally connected world, it has become imperative to train psychology professionals who are proficient in working with a wide variety of cultural identities. For this reason, the Masters of Psychology at University of the West focuses on exploring both the Western and Eastern contributions to psychology.

The Buddhist Psychology track holds the same multicultural emphasis as the Multicultural Generalist track, but with the additional inclusion of Buddhist perspectives. Buddhist concepts and practices have been successfully used in Western counseling settings. For example, the concept of mindfulness and meditation has been empirically supported and widely integrated into contemporary Western psychology practices. Students following this track will gain additional expertise in these areas.

Both the Multicultural Generalist and Buddhist Psychology specialty track require a minimum of 48 semester units. Units are divided into 15 foundational course units, 12 core level course units, 3 advanced level units, 6 units of practicum at an approved practicum site, and a minimum of 12 units to be taken from a list of electives. Specialty tracks (i.e. Buddhist Psychology) require 12 units of coursework in the area of specialty which are taken in lieu of electives. Furthermore, all students are required to pass a comprehensive exam in their final semester.

Foundation level Courses & Competencies, 15 units

PSYCH 501 Experimental Design & Statistical Analysis (3)

PSYCH 530 Psychopathology: Assessment and Diagnosis in Counseling (3)

PSYCH 531 Theories and Techniques of Counseling and Psychotherapy (3)

PSYCH 532 Legal & Ethical Issues in Counseling and Psychotherapy (3)

PSYCH 533 Seminar: Counseling of Multicultural Groups (3)

Student Learning Outcomes:

- a) be able to express an increased level of self-awareness as it applies to their role as therapists, which includes an understanding and ability to articulate their own cultural values and biases.
 - b) demonstrate an appreciation for diverse cultures as it applies to the therapeutic process and outcome and be able to identify potential limitations in main stream, Western Psychological Practices.
 - c) be able to describe and explain the ethics and laws pertaining to therapeutic services.
 - d) be able to give examples and explain the various psychotherapeutic theoretical approaches and corresponding diagnostic and intervention techniques.
- be able to execute the skills needed to be critical consumers of the psychological research literature relating, but not limited to, methodological design, statistical analysis, and interpretation of research results for practical application in various therapeutic and consultation settings.
- e) be able to execute the skills needed to be critical consumers of the psychological research literature relating, but not limited to, methodological design, statistical analysis, and interpretation of research results for practical application in various therapeutic and consultation settings.

PSYCH 545 Psychopharmacology (3)

Student Learning Outcomes:

- a) be able to develop and describe a counseling style that is tailored to their own personality and related strengths.
- b) be able to apply the ethics and laws set forth to guide therapeutic practice to sophisticated case scenarios and in vivo counseling sessions.
- c) demonstrate competency in the assessment, detection, and intervention of both spousal and child abuse in accordance with field guidelines and state laws.
- d) be able to apply an integrative multicultural approach to therapy. Furthermore, students will be able to show an understanding of the differences in the cultural characteristics of various cultural identities including ethnicity, race, gender, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, as well as physical and mental ability.

Advanced level Courses & Competencies (3 units required)

PSYCH 600 Advanced Counseling Group Process & Skills (3)
PSYCH 602 Advanced Couples Counseling (3)
PSYCH 605 Advanced Family Therapy (3)
PSYCH 607 Advanced Seminar in Culture & Psychotherapy (3)

Student Learning Outcomes:

- a) be able to identify an area of research interest, and subsequently design, analyze, and interpret research projects according to scientific methodology.
- b) demonstrate knowledge and gain experience needed to synthesize various psychotherapeutic approaches.
- c) be able to conduct thorough intake interviews (including suicide assessments), summarize the themes of the interview, identify goals for therapy, and evaluate the process and outcome of therapy for individuals (adults & children) as well as in family and group counseling sessions.
- d) develop cultural responsiveness in terms of intake, diagnosis, treatment planning, and intervention selection. Furthermore, case conceptualizations will reflect a refined understanding of the impact their own cultural identities and values have on the therapeutic process.

Fieldwork (6 units required)

PSYCH 610 & PSYCH 615 are required and are to be taken consecutively. PSYCH 560 is optional additional fieldwork. All fieldwork and practicum placements must be approved by the department chair, or training director. All training sites must have a written contract with University of the West indicating their commitment to abide by the supervisory conditions required for the pre-MFT licensure requirements, as guided by California's Board of Behavioral Sciences (BBS).

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS: DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY

PSYCH 100 Introduction to Western Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: None.

This course is a survey of the broad field of Western Psychology. It will take you on a journey of the various concepts utilized to understand individual thought and behavior over the lifespan. Topics include biological, cognitive, social, developmental, and personality influences on behavior. Furthermore, this course will offer a basic introduction to research methodology for the social sciences as well as a basic introduction to abnormal psychology, and the DSM. It also introduces and explores prominent clinical and counseling theories and interventions. The impact of culture and how Eastern thought has influenced Western perspectives is also explored.

PSYCH 210 Eastern and Western Perspectives on Cognitive Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 100.

This course offers an introduction to both Western cognitive psychology and Buddhist perspectives of thought. Topics include perception, understanding, memory, utilizing imagination, thinking, reasoning, and other mental abilities. Special attention is paid to comparing and contrasting the two systems.

PSYCH 220 Eastern and Western Perspectives of Affective Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 100.

The ways in which emotions influence motivation, attitudes, personality, and other related psychological aspects are covered in this course. Special attention is paid to comparing and contrasting Eastern and Western views of emotion (i.e. distinct affective preferences).

PSYCH 300 Research Design and Data Analysis in Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 100.

Psychology is informed by psychological research. This course will introduce the ways in which psychological research questions are determined, reviews quasi-experimental and experimental designs (quantitative and qualitative) commonly utilized to execute a research study, covers various ways in which research data is analyzed, and discusses the implications of data interpretation.

PSYCH 310 Physiological Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

This course focuses on the biological basis of individual thought and behavior. Brain structure, hormones, biochemical, and genetic factors are explored. Special attention is paid to behavioral health interventions and the mind-body connection.

PSYCH 320 Psychology of Learning (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

This course introduces the ways in which learning affects behavior. Additionally, it covers the history of behaviorism and the principles and applications of behavior modification, including the contributions of Pavlov, Watson, Skinner, and Bandura. Ethical issues and cultural implications are discussed.

PSYCH 330 Developmental Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 100.

This course provides an examination of human development across the lifespan. Major theories of human development, including those from physical, cognitive, psychological, and social perspectives will be studied and are covered from a multicultural perspective. Special attention is paid to issues related to aging and long-term care.

PSYCH 340 Psychology of Personality (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

Prominent and influential views of personality development are covered in this course. Examples include theories such as Freudian Psychoanalysis, Jungian, Behavioral and Learning perspectives, Biological views, Cognitive theory, Existential perspectives, and Interpersonal theories of personality development. Buddhist, Hindi, and Sufi traditions will also be explored. Lastly, cultural implications, such as cultural sensitivity, application of personality theory to diverse populations, and multicultural and cross-cultural limitations of select theories will be addressed throughout.

PSYCH 350 Social Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300

Society is the mirror in which we see ourselves. This course explores society's impact on individual thoughts, beliefs, values, and behaviors. Historical and influential theories and related research investigations will be introduced and discussed. Furthermore, the influence of culture and current socio-political norms will be investigated.

PSYCH 360 Fieldwork (1-4)

Prerequisite: Approval of advisor/department chair.

This course requires a field placement, and is for students who wish to gain hand on and/or specialized training in mental health service delivery. The student must demonstrate how the placement/project is related to their studies in psychology and their related professional career goals. Special permission from the department chair is required to enroll in this course.

PSYCH 410 Introduction to Western Psychotherapy (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

Various historically influential, popular, and empirically supported approaches to psychotherapy are explored in this course. Benefits and limitations of each are discussed. Cross-cultural implications, including problems with treatment generalizability, as well as problems with care access for select cultural groups are also covered.

PSYCH 415 Psychological Disorders (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

This course will explore the historical views and current perspectives of abnormal behavior, including categorical versus dimensional perspectives. Major diagnostic categories and criteria, individual and social factors of maladaptive behavior, and types of therapy are reviewed. Additionally, various methods of clinical assessment and research strategies are covered. Special attention is paid to the impact of culture on abnormality.

PSYCH 418 Psychological Tests and Measurements (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

Various psychological assessment procedures will be covered in this course, including structured and unstructured interviews, self report inventories, objective personality tests, ability and preference tests, individual intelligence (IQ) tests, and projective tests. Test administration ethics and the importance of psychometrics, such as validity and reliability, will be covered. Cultural limitations of each will be discussed throughout.

PSYCH 420 Cross-cultural Psychology (3)

In this course the dynamic influence of cultural group identity is explored. Students taking this course will gain an increase in their awareness of their own complex and dynamic cultural identities. Values, beliefs, and differential cultural expectations will be covered. Furthermore, various multicultural and cross-cultural psychological theories and influential research investigations will be discussed.

PSYCH 425 Psychology and Education (3)

Prerequisites: PSYCH 300.

Applications of principles of cognitive development, learning, perception, memory, and language development to educational problems are covered in this course. This includes general instructional issues, gifted and talented children, early childhood education, education of traditionally underrepresented groups and special needs populations.

PSYCH 430 Industrial-Organizational Psychology (3)

Prerequisites: PSYCH 300.

This course offers a study of practices of modern organizational and personnel psychology. Topics include selection, placement, training, motivation, job analysis, evaluation, human factors, counseling in the work-place, and the processes involved in developing and maintaining organizations.

PSYCH 440 Psychology of Religion (3)

Prerequisites: PSYCH 300.

This course explores spiritual and religious experience utilizing psychological methods and theories. It offers a study of the integration of spirituality and psychology as seen in counseling practice. Topics include psychosocial development, death, conversion, mysticism, morality, guilt, mental health, wellness, coping, and counseling strategies.

PSYCH 450 Buddhist Psychology (3)

Prerequisites: PSYCH 300.

This course offers an examination of the Buddhist views of mental functions, motivation, emotion, personality, human development, social ethics and psychotherapy according to Buddhist concepts and beliefs. Moreover, it includes comparison to corresponding and contrasting Western views.

PSYCH 455 Buddhist and Scientific Approaches to Mind (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

This course offers an exploration of Buddhist teachings regarding the mind and their comparisons with neuroscientific findings about the brain.

PSYCH 460 Buddhist Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

An introduction to Buddhist philosophies and their implications for counseling in helping service and self-development. Various practice methods, such as meditation, chanting, self-reflection, repentance and their applications in school, family, marriage, career, loss, and relationships are explored.

PSYCH 470 Integrative Psychology of Living and Dying (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

An exploration of issues related to psychological and spiritual thoughts of life and death, mechanisms for coping with dying and loss, and cultural differences in encounters with death. These issues are discussed from both Western and Buddhist psychological perspectives. The ultimate goal is for students to improve their quality of life through an understanding of death.

PSYCH 471 Legal and Ethical Issues in Hospice Care and Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

Legal and ethical issues for both hospices and hospitals required by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations are covered in this course, along with counseling skills specific to hospice/hospital patients and their families.

PSYCH 480 Integrative Psychology of Ethics and Morality (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 300.

An integrative study of ethics and moral reasoning based on the theories and practices of both Buddhist and Western psychology, with an emphasis on the development and formation of concepts of right and wrong, good and bad, and the application of moral principles to daily life.

PSYCH 495 Eastern and Western Perspectives on Contemporary Issues in Psychology and Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: Permission from advisor needed

This course reviews and explores contemporary issues from the perspectives of both Eastern and Western psychological views. Special focus is placed on applications of counseling and psychotherapy techniques promoted by the two traditions.

PSYCH 499 Practicum Prep (2)

Prerequisite: Graduate status

This course is designed to provide students with the necessary materials, skills and knowledge needed to pursue their first MFT practicum placement. This includes identification of a primary theoretical orientation, mastering case conceptualizations, engaging in mock interviews, identifying potential training sites, as well as addressing legal, ethical, and cultural considerations.

PSYCH 500 Graduate Research and Writing Practicum (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status or permission of department chair.

This course offers student the opportunity to learn basic writing and research skills required for successful graduate work. This includes APA format style, searching for relevant literature, thesis structure, citation of sources, and use of references.

PSYCH 501 Experimental Design and Statistical Analysis (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

Psychology is informed by psychological research. This course will cover the ways in which sound psychological research questions are determined. It will also review advanced quasi-experimental and experimental design methods (quantitative and qualitative) utilized to execute a research study. It also covers various ways in which research data is analyzed, and discusses the implications of data interpretation.

PSYCH 529 Stress & Stress Management (3)

This course reviews the potential biological, social, and psychological sources of stress. It furthermore offers various stress management and relaxation techniques. Ways in which these techniques are empirically support and utilized in clinical practice is also discussed.

PSYCH 520 Buddhist Psychotherapeutic Approaches (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course introduces various Buddhist practices and precepts along with their implication and psychotherapeutic applications. Existing literature on the study of Buddhist practices in mental health and Western psychotherapeutic theories and methods are reviewed, compared and contrasted.

PSYCH 525 Seminar: Buddhism and Cognition (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

Advances in cognitive science have resolved and clarified some of the great questions of Western philosophy: What is the structure of the world and how do we come to know it? Does everyone represent the world the same way? What is the best way for us to act in the world? Specific topics include color, objects, categories, similarity, inductive inference, space, time, causality, reasoning, decision-making, morality and consciousness. Course examines how the insights of Buddhist psychology and meditation practices are making an impact on cognitive science.

PSYCH 530 Psychopathology and Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course reviews the current taxonomy of Western psychopathology including, but not limited to clinical disorders, personality disorders, select medical, and psychosocial & environmental problems. Etiologies, prevalence, symptoms, and treatments are introduced and discussed for each. Sexual identity, sexual dysfunction, and gender identity disorders are given special attention. Human sexual anatomy and response, sex roles, sexual orientation, female and male sexual dysfunction and contemporary clinical treatment methods for sexual problems are studied in this class. Additionally, there is consistent focus on students' own beliefs, attitudes and feelings, and on examination of sexual morals, ethical issues, and sociocultural perspectives. Lastly, this course examines conditions in self and society associated with the use and abuse of addictive substances, particularly alcohol and drugs, and explores a variety of traditional and nontraditional treatment models. Further topics include medical aspects, evaluation, theories of etiology, legal issues, prevention, and follow-up for the abuser and family.

PSYCH 531 Theories and Techniques of Counseling and Psychotherapy (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course is designed to provide students with knowledge and experiences in counseling and helping skills with an emphasis on traditional counseling and psychotherapy theory and skills including individual (adult, child, & adolescent) and group process therapy skills. This course presents theoretical and empirically supported approaches to intervention strategies for dealing with psychological, emotional, relationship, and adjustment problems in individuals, couples and groups.

PSYCH 532 Legal & Ethical Issues in Counseling and Psychotherapy (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course exposes the student to the relevant ethical codes, practice standards, legal statutes, and expectations of professional conduct. Ethical decision-making skills will be presented along with contemporary ethical issues. Professional and public responsibility and the meaning of the professional counseling relationship will be discussed. Furthermore, this course explores the fundamental tenets of child advocacy and of social policies affecting children. Scholarly studies will be examined on a broad range of societal issues related to the healthy development and education of children in society. Topics may include ethnic violence, drugs, poverty, the juvenile justice system, health and mental health care, and child abuse. Issues related to domestic violence are also a focus of this course, including dynamics of spousal, child and elder abuse, family issues and multigenerational patterns.

PSYCH 533 Seminar: Counseling of Multicultural Groups (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course focuses on developing an understanding of the human experience through the values and beliefs of various multicultural and cross-cultural identities. It is designed to introduce students to psychological issues concerning human systems, self and group identity, conflict, consciousness, development, gender, cultural values, spirituality, race/ethnicity, individualism-collectivism, evolution and their impact on counseling process and outcome. Lastly, students will gain awareness and understanding of self and others' cultural perspectives.

PSYCH 536 Marriage/Couples and Family Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course is a survey of contemporary, multicultural, and contextual analyses of the major models of couples and family therapy, the integration of various approaches in relationship therapy, and the process and outcome research that document the state of MFT effectiveness with couples and families.

PSYCH 537 Dream work in Psychotherapy (3)

This course reviews the various ways in which dream content is utilized in psychotherapy assessment and treatment. Psychoanalytic, Jungian, and Existential Gestalt approaches will be covered. Historical and cultural considerations will also be addressed.

PSYCH 538 Psychological Testing (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course includes discussion of topics such as clinical interviewing, evidence-based diagnostic assessment, and behavioral assessment. Various psychological assessment procedures will be covered, including structured and unstructured interviews, self report inventories, objective personality tests, ability and preference tests, individual intelligence (IQ) tests, and projective tests. Test administration ethics and the importance of psychometrics, such as validity and reliability, will be covered. Cultural limitations of each will be discussed throughout.

PSYCH 540 Adult Development & Aging (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course provides an in-depth exploration of the developmental processes related to aging from a bio-psychosocial perspective. Students will explore age-change theories and human adaptations in terms of mental health, personality stability, sensory aging related to cognitive processes, learning, and social cognition. The course includes discussions of the unique psychological needs of this population including; relationship issues, aging and diversity, death and bereavement, spirituality, occupational patterns, retirement, and leisure. Moreover, it focuses on psychotherapeutic effectiveness of various models with this population.

PSYCH 545 Psychopharmacology (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course provides an orientation to understanding current drug therapies for psychological problems. Topics include medications in general use, criteria for referring patients for psychopharmacological evaluation, cultural and interpersonal issues, and how and when medications can contribute to effective treatment. Frequently voiced philosophical, ethical, and legal concerns regarding biological factors and drug treatment are discussed, along with the risks and benefits of drug therapies.

PSYCH 560 Fieldwork (1-4)

Prerequisite: Approval of advisor/department chair.

This course requires hands on experience in a field placement. It is for those students who wish to augment their graduate studies with specialized training and/or experience outside the University in their own field of study. The field experience must have significant bearing on the professional goals of the student and must be in addition to the student's regular commitment.

PSYCH 600 Advanced Group Process & Skills (3)

Prerequisite: At least 18 units of graduate coursework must be completed

This course focuses on the stages of various process and skills groups. Historical, theoretical, and empirically supported models are reviewed and practiced.

PSYCH 602 Advanced Couples Counseling (3)

Prerequisite: At least 18 units of graduate coursework must be completed

This course offers an in-depth look at the current modalities of couples counseling including process and outcome effectiveness studies, as well as advanced assessment and intervention techniques. Cultural and ethical issues will also be discussed throughout.

PSYCH 604 Child and Adolescent Interventions in Therapy (3)

Prerequisite: Psychology 531

This course offers an in-depth look at the various theories, assessment, and intervention techniques specific to child and adolescent populations, including play therapy. Culture and ethical issues/limitations will also be discussed.

PSYCH 605 Advanced Family Therapy (3)

Prerequisite: At least 18 units of graduate coursework must be completed

This course provides students with an advanced look at the history and current status of family therapy including family multi-systemic theory, functional family therapy and additional evidence-based practices. Much attention will be paid to cultural implications and multigenerational family patterns.

PSYCH 607 Advanced Seminar in Culture & Psychotherapy (3)

Prerequisite: At least 18 units of graduate coursework must be completed

This course focuses on expanding students' understanding of the human experience through a deep awareness of their own and others cultural identities and related values and beliefs and its impact on therapy process and outcome. Coursework is designed to provide an advanced investigation into psychological issues concerning human systems, self and group identity, conflict, consciousness, development, gender, cultural values, spirituality, race/ethnicity, individualism-collectivism, and evolution.

PSYCH 611 The Essential Yalom (3)

Prerequisite: Psychology 531

This course outlines the contributions of renowned psychiatrist, Irvin Yalom. Existential perspectives, and here & now process work make up the bulk of this course's content. Case studies from various Yalom texts will be reviewed and discussed in detail.

PSYCH 614 Religion & Psychology Seminar (3)

This course is a study of spiritual and religious experience utilizing psychological methods and theories, including a study of the integration of spirituality and psychology as seen in counseling practice. Topics include psychosocial development, death, conversion, mysticism, morality, guilt, mental health, wellness, coping, and counseling strategies.

PSYCH 610B Practicum in Multicultural Counseling Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 501, 531, 532, and completion of 20 hours of graduate level coursework

The practicum training program provides students hands on clinical experience, with a focus on multicultural psychotherapy theory and related interventions. During the course of the semester, practicum students will be expected to develop their skills on both a personal and professional level through individual supervision, discussing clinical cases and professional issues in the training seminar, and working with clients individually and in groups. Permission is required and arrangements must be made to obtain an approved practicum placement within the community. PSYCH 610 and 615 should be taken consecutive semesters.

PSYCH 615B Advanced Practicum in Multicultural Counseling Psychology (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 501, 531, 532, 610, and must have completed 23 hours of graduate level course-work

The practicum training program provides students hands on clinical experience, with a focus on multicultural psychotherapy theory and related interventions. During the course of the semester, practicum students will be expected to develop their skills on both a personal and professional level through individual supervision, discussing clinical cases and professional issues in the training seminar, and working with clients individually and in groups. Permission is required and arrangements must be made to obtain an approved practicum placement within the community. PSYCH 610 and 615 should be taken consecutive semesters.

PSYCH 617 Application of Mindfulness in Western Therapy (3)

Prerequisite: Graduate status.

This course provides a comprehensive introduction to the concept of mindfulness and its influence on Western Psychotherapeutic research and practice. It furthermore, reviews the historical and contemporary literature on the efficacy and effectiveness of mindful-based therapeutic approaches on the process and outcome of treatment. Cultural issues and limitations are also discussed.

PSYCH 650 Directed Research (3)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 501 and permission from instructor

This course involves hands on experience with the research process; from investigating research questions, writing literature reviews, designing studies and analyzing results, as well as interpreting results and discussing the related implications.

PSYCH 699b Comprehensive Exam (0)

Prerequisite: Permission of Department Chair and Advisor. Student must be in their final semester.

PSYCH 699a Thesis (1-6)

Prerequisite: PSYCH 501, PSYCH 650 and permission from instructor

This course requires hands on research experience where the student serves as the principle investigator. As principle investigator, the student is responsible for identifying an appropriate research question, drafting the literature review, designing and analyzing results, as well as interpreting results and the related implications.

PSYCH 715 Continuous Enrollment Research (1)

Course required for graduate-level students who no longer need courses, but must remain in continuous enrollment each semester until completion of exam, thesis, etc. Course does not count toward minimum requirements for graduation. P/NP

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

FACULTY

Jennifer Cheng, Edward Chong, Mark Glover, Vanessa Karam, Oscar Martinez, Scott Underwood

“Nothing exists except through language.”

- Hans-Georg Gadamer

At University of the West, the Department of English is dedicated to offering students a unique learning experience. This experience introduces the rigorous study of English, challenging students to explore the dynamic relationship among literature, language, and culture. As a part of this exploration, the Department encourages students to engage in mindful and critical reflection on a wide range of themes, concepts, and ideologies inherent to the study of English. Its focus is on cultivating student response that demonstrates not only academic learning, but also a social awareness of cross-cultural perspectives. In this way, the program's approach to English supports the intellectual and personal development of its students. Its aim is to challenge students to engage in self-reflection via the study of English.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN ENGLISH

The Department offers a Bachelor of Arts in English. This program invites students to explore the different ways in which the field of English has been studied. The degree is designed to present an integrated approach to the study of English – one that delves into the nature of language, in its literary and practical forms.

Course offerings in the program are intended to ensure that students

- Demonstrate a foundational knowledge of English through a selection of Literature and Languages courses;
- Apply critical reading approaches to produce multiple interpretations of the text;
- Discuss the role of the reader in the reading process;
- Demonstrate individual, cultural, and cross-cultural perspectives on canonical and noncanonical texts;
- Demonstrate individual, cultural, and cross-cultural perspectives on various language practices and experiences;
- Contextualize the study of English within a moral/intellectual approach to determine how the text presents lessons on character formation and development;
- Ground the study of English within a moral/intellectual approach to determine how the text presents messages on contemporary issues and concerns in the world;
- Develop language skills (e.g., critical thinking abilities and communication skills);
- Apply media and information literacy skills; and
- Demonstrate an understanding of the writing process: from the general principles of composition/argument to sophisticated methods of library research and research writing.

To graduate with a B. A. in English, students must complete a minimum of 120 semester units with a cumulative grade point average of a 2.0 or higher. (See Repetition of Course Policy.) These requirements include a minimum of 48 General Education units, of which 9 units must be at the upper-division level, and 42 units in the major, of which 36 must be at the upper-division level. Students may opt to take the remaining 30 units as course electives in any major or subject. A minimum of 30 units, including at least 24 upper-division units, must be completed at the University of the West.

The degree in English provides a solid foundation of knowledge and skills for those who wish to pursue a graduate degree in English literature, linguistics, teaching English as a second language, or a related field. The major imparts the intellectual and analytical skills necessary to succeed in a variety of professions for which the major in English can provide excellent preparation, including law, administration, business, and teaching.

The major imparts the intellectual and analytical skills necessary to succeed in a variety of professions for which the major in English can provide excellent preparation, including law, administration, business, and teaching.

Program Design

At UWest, the B. A. in English is unique in that the program offers two areas of specialization from which students may choose. The Literature and the Language track present two methodologies for understanding how the English language has been described and analyzed in the discipline of English. Both tracks share an interest in cultivating academic inquiry and creative imagination. Courses press students to consider different perspectives and to question their assumptions in order to promote reflective engagement with the text, with their peers and faculty, and with social issues and concerns of the day. In this way, each track not only introduces a body of knowledge particular to each field of English, but also challenges students to apply this knowledge to ethical dilemmas in the world as represented and discussed in literature and linguistics.

Before specializing in the Literature or the Language track, students enrolled in the major need to consult with an English faculty advisor regarding the completion of core lower- and upper-division units. (See the following pages for this information.) These courses, also consisting of literature and languages classes, provide a solid foundation in the study of English and prepare students to select a degree track. In the final year of the program, students conclude their studies with a capstone course that examines literary imagination and cultural identity in their linguistic construction.

Literature Track

The Literature track in the English program equips students with the reading, writing, and research methods for understanding, analyzing, and evaluating literature. The track introduces students to a survey of significant works in English and American literature. It provides an in-depth knowledge of literary genre, figures, and movements while presenting a variety of critical reading approaches (e.g., moral/intellectual, New Critical, historical, feminist, Marxist, reader response, etc.) for exploring the different traditions, experiences, and voices that make up literature.

As an integral component of these courses, the Literature track also prepares students to explore the complex representations of the human experience as presented in literary texts. The track implements a reflective approach to critical response, pressing students to consider the moral and ethical dilemmas demonstrated in key human issues in literature: love, death, work, the nature of good and evil, images of gender and family, immigration and civil rights, and the American dream. This approach is intended to extend student critical thinking skills regarding the text, its lessons on character development and its thematic treatment of world issues.

Language Track

With an emphasis on the English language, the Language track provides students an overview of the field of linguistics. The track raises questions of how people use language and what they must know to do so. In this track, English is studied as a formal system and as a human and social phenomenon. Students become familiar with the tools and the methods of major linguistics fields and learn how they can be applied to matters of practical concern.

In accordance with the University's mission statement, the relationship between language and culture is highlighted and explored in the Language track. Students examine the historical, psychological, social, and political dimensions of language, language learning, and language use. Course offerings delve into the concerns and issues related to language: bilingualism, multilingualism, language varieties, language assessment, literacy, language pedagogy, second language acquisition, pragmatics, and language planning and policies. The Language track challenges students to reflect on the ways language is integrally tied to power, culture, and identity.

Repetition of Course Policy

While students at UWest are expected to maintain a cumulative grade point average of a 2.0 or better, they are required to repeat a course or courses (up to 16 units) within the major if they receive a grade lower than a C-. Repeating a course more than once requires approval by the Coordinator of the Bachelor of Arts in English. Repetition of courses is restricted for courses completed with a C- or better.

General Education Requirements (6 units):

All students majoring in English must complete the following courses in the Humanities (Literature) section of General Education:

LIT 101 Introduction to American Literature (3)

LIT 301 Advanced Composition (3) or

LIT 302 Creative Writing (3)

(For all other General Education Requirements, see the General Education section in this catalogue.)

Bachelor of Arts in English Requirements (42 units)

Shared Lower Division (6 units)

ENGL 201 Introduction to Literary Studies (3)

LANG 220 Structure of Modern English (3)

Goals:

Students will be introduced to the foundational theories, concepts, and methods of analysis to understand the art and the use of the English language. This set of courses prepares students for the shared upper-division units in the major.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of these courses, students will be able to:

- Describe the characteristics of fiction, drama, and poetry;
- Apply literary terminology and critical reading approaches to works of literature;
- Address questions on theme and voice in literature;
- Complete literary research using the conventions of writing in the discipline;
- Identify the differences between descriptive and prescriptive approaches to language use;
- Recognize the difference between standard and nonstandard and grammatical and nongrammatical language use; and
- Analyze the English language in terms of its grammar, morphology, syntax, and meaning and context.

Shared Upper Division (12 units)

To continue progressing through the B. A. in English, students must take a selection of courses listed under sections A, B, and C. (See below.)

A. LIT: Take the following two courses.

ENGL 300A English Literature I (3)

ENGL 300B English Literature II (3)

B. CRIT: Choose at least one course.

ENGL 340 Literary Theory and Criticism (3)

ENGL 345 Critical Reading, Writing, and Analysis of Literary Forms (3)

C. LANG: Take the following course below.

LANG 301 Introduction to Linguistics (3)

Goals:

Students will build on the knowledge, perspectives, and skills learned in their lower-division courses to broaden their understanding of English literature and the English language. The courses in this section prepare students to select a degree track in the English program.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of these courses, students will be able to:

- Relate a succession of British and American writers and their works to historical contexts and literary movements;

- b) Identify, define, and compare and contrast the characteristics of individual authors or literary movements;
- c) Discuss literary works in terms of their ideological factors (e.g., class, race, ethnicity, gender, etc.);
- d) Learn critical perspectives and theories used to discuss literature;
- e) Evaluate different ways of reading and writing about literature;
- f) Apply literary theory to works of literature;
- g) Identify and define various branches of linguistics;
- h) Demonstrate a knowledge of key terms and concepts in linguistics; and
- i) Relate course concepts to personal language learning experiences.

Choose either the Literature Track or the Language Track.

Literature Track (15 units)

Students who opt to take the Literature Track in the English program must complete a selection of courses from sections A, B, and C. (See below.)

A. Literary Genre: Choose at least one course.

ENGL 315 Reading Poetry (3)

ENGL 320 Reading Drama (3)

ENGL 325 Reading Fiction (3)

B. Literary Figures and Historical Periods: Choose at least two courses.

ENGL 445 Chaucer and the English Medieval Period (3)

ENGL 460 Romanticism (3)

ENGL 470 Studies in Contemporary Literature (3)

ENGL 475 Shakespeare: Selected Plays (3)

C. The American Experience: Choose at least one course.

ENGL 480 Literature of the United States I (3)

ENGL 481 Literature of the United States II (3)

ENGL 482 Minority Voices and Diversity in American Literature (3)

Goals:

Students will deepen their knowledge and understanding of literary genres, figures, and movements in British and American literature. Like other courses in the program, the track continues to present a selection of canonical and noncanonical texts to demonstrate the diverse voices that have contributed to literature.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of these courses, students will be able to:

- a) Evaluate different genres of literature using key concepts for understanding the text;
- b) Learn the different literary forms that make up each genre;
- c) Explain the important contributions of two literary figures;
- d) Discuss the sociopolitical conditions surrounding the works of two literary figures and historical movements;
- e) Identify, define, and compare and contrast the style and themes of individual writers within a historical movement or literary traditions;
- f) Analyze and evaluate the work of Asian-American, African-American, Jewish, Latino, etc. writers; and
- g) Discuss issues having to do with canon formation, the American dream, gender, equality, ethnicity, globalization, immigration, multiculturalism, race, and religion.

Capstone for Literature Track:

ENGL 490 Writing American Historical Memory and the Immigrant Experience (3)

Goals:

Students will apply the knowledge they have acquired in their lower- and upper-division courses and in the Literature track to read, interpret, analyze, and evaluate the work of minority and immigrant authors. The course prepares students to matriculate to the comprehensive capstone for the English major.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- a) Discuss how the American identity is influenced by gender, social, economic, and political factors;
- b) Understand literature as a means for documenting histories and memories;
- d) Identify and discuss how the immigrant narrative is a defining story or model of American culture.

Language Track (15 units)

Like the students on the Literature Track, students on the Language Track must complete a selection of courses from sections A and B. (See below.)

A. Theoretical Linguistics: Choose at least two courses.

LANG 350 Phonology (3)

LANG 370 Semantics and Pragmatics (3)

LANG 390 Morphology and Syntax (3)

B. Applied Linguistics: Choose at least two courses.

LANG 410 Sociolinguistics: Varieties of English (3)

LANG 450 History of the English Language (3)

LANG 470 Multilingualism (3)

TESOL 400 Foundations of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (3)

Goals:

Students will expand their knowledge of English and the English language, examining the different aspects of theoretical and applied linguistics. The track introduces the theories, concepts, perspectives, and methods languages have been studied and analyzed.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of these courses, students will be able to:

- a) Identify and define the basic tools and concepts for studying sound patterns, the meaning of and relationship between words, the social context of language, structural grammar and the structure of sentences;
- b) Discuss the linguistic features of different varieties of English in the U.S.;
- c) Identify and explain the general features of Old, Middle, Early Modern, and Modern English;
- d) Explain the social and historical contexts for language change;
- e) Demonstrate an understanding of linguistic diversity;
- f) Address the political, social, educational, and moral questions and issues that relate to language diversity in the U.S.; and
- g) Explain theories of language acquisition and approaches to language teaching.

Capstone for Language Track:

LANG 490 Language, Power and Identity (3)

Goals:

Students will apply the knowledge they have acquired in their lower- and upper-division courses and the Language track to examine how individuals, groups, and institutions use language. The course prepares students to matriculate to the comprehensive capstone for the English major.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- a) Discuss how language constitutes social and political power;
- b) Explain the way media, organizations, and education reflect and influence ideological values and beliefs on the use of language;
- c) Demonstrate an understanding of how ideological factors (e.g., race, ethnicity, class, gender, etc.) shape language use and perceptions of language use; and
- d) Contextualize the language of minorities and immigrant speakers within a discussion on dominance and difference and "official language" politics.

Electives for Both Tracks:

All students in the program must take at least one elective course from sections A and B. (See below.)

A. East-West: Take at least one course.

ENGL 336 Asian American Writers (3)

ENGL 426 Depictions of Asia in English Literature (3)

B. Special Interest: Choose from the following or other upper-division ENGL or LANG courses not otherwise taken.

ENGL 326 Women Writers (3)

ENGL 425 History of the English Novel (3)

ENGL 465 Prose and Poetry of the Victorian Age (3)

ENGL 340 Language and Literature (3)

Goals:

Students will delve further into additional literary topics, historical movements, and genre forms. These courses extend foundational knowledge in English along with other offerings in the major.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of these courses, students will be able to:

- Analyze the writings of Asian-American authors, exploring the breath of those writings from an artistic and a historical perspective;
- Evaluate the representation of Asia in British and American literature;
- Recognize the breadth, variety, and remarkable contribution that women writers have made to literature;
- Discuss the implications of race and gender in themes and styles of writing;
- Explain the nature of and history of a literary genre like the novel or a historical period like Victorian age; and
- Examine the literary uses of language.

Comprehensive Capstone for the Bachelor of Arts in English (Both Tracks) (3 units)ENGL 495 Writing Culture: Literary Imagination and Cultural Identity (3)*Goals:

Students will apply the foundational theories, concepts, perspectives, and methods presented in the English program to analyze and evaluate the use of language in works of literature. The course challenges students to think comprehensively on the nature of language as an expression of literary imagination and as a reflection of cultural identity.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Discuss the diverse ways in which literature allows writers to explore, challenge, and reformulate definitions of identity;
- Examine the ways in which language reflects personal identity and the imagination and speaks culture;
- Explain how language use in literature is a form of political resistance, empowerment, and identity; and
- Complete independent study/research to compose a senior thesis.

Topics include labor and literature; identity, visions of 'America'; immigration, migration, and exile; autobiography and historical change. Themes are related to such persistent problems as generational differences, gender politics, and interethnic encounters.

ENGL 490 (LIT Capstone): Writing American Historical Memory and the Immigrant Experience (3)

Prerequisite: Successful completion of a minimum of 9 units in the Literature track.

A comparative study of the American immigrant experience designed to integrate the knowledge of literary history, criticism, and literary forms that students have gained from other literature courses in the major. Through a multiplicity of cultural perspectives and literary narratives, this course explores American literature as a powerful venue for documenting our histories, memories, and families. This course will focus on the immigrant experience in America by addressing the issues of assimilation, exclusion, acculturation, Americanism, ethnicity, monolingualism, and multiculturalism through the close textual reading of a selection of literary forms such as autobiographies, plays, poems, short stories, novels, essays, and biographies. In reading a variety of literatures, students will be encouraged to draw upon their accrued knowledge and experience with the study of literature and its forms in order to examine and ultimately reflect on the dynamics of American society in relation to immigration and ethnicity, both old and new.

ENGL 495 Writing Culture: Literary Imagination and Cultural Identity (Comprehensive English Capstone) (3)

Explores the relationship between language, literature, and culture, specifically the ways in which literature represents, expresses and defines the perception/reception of culture through its linguistic construction. Central to the course is the question: Does culture speak language or does language speak culture? In answering this question, students draw upon their background in English linguistic and literary theory as they study a variety of texts from across genres, cultures and literary history.

Topics include the politics of language and the role non-standard English plays as a form of resistance, power/empowerment and an assertion of cultural identity through the use of vernacular, paralinguistic, colloquial, pidgin/hybrid, idiomatic and slang expressions that are perceived as 'culturally' specific. Examples may be drawn from the writings of Twain, Joyce, Kingston, Tan, Faulkner, Williams, and others.

LANG 220 Structure of Modern English (3)

Prerequisite: None.

The grammar and usage of contemporary English, with emphasis on morpho-syntactical description and analysis of Standard English.

LANG 301 Introduction to Linguistics (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 220.

An introduction to linguistics, the scientific study of human language, with a focus on English. Considers languages as structured systems of form and meaning, with attention also to the biological, psychological, cultural, and social aspects of language and language use.

LANG 340 Language and Literature (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 201; Recommended: LANG 301.

Examines the literary uses of language. Topics include poetic language and meter, poetic language and syntax, and literature and cognitive metaphor, and the representation of speech and thought through fictional narrative. Includes the relationship between syntactic patterning and the author's world-view, the social conventions surrounding literary utterances, and issues of literature and translation.

LANG 350 Phonology (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 301.

A study of sound patterns and word-formation rules with an emphasis on how the sound system of English is structured and how and why it differs from other languages. Course includes practice in phonological analysis, issues of pronunciation and prosody.

LANG 370 Semantics and Pragmatics (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 301. Recommended: LANG 220.

With an emphasis on English, a look at how language provides words and idioms for fundamental concepts and ideas (lexical semantics), how the parts of a sentence are integrated into the basis for understanding its meaning (compositional semantics), and the role of context in assessing meaning.

LANG 390 Morphology and Syntax (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 301.

Studies how words are internally structured and how word formation takes place. Looks at the phrase structure properties of English, the different properties of main and embedded clauses, and movement operations. Also includes the effects that some morphological processes have on syntax.

LANG 410 Sociolinguistics: Varieties of English (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 201.

With an emphasis on English in America, students examine the place of language in society and how the divisions of societies into social classes, ethnic, religious and racial groups are mirrored by linguistic differences. Includes the way language is used differently by men and women, and the interaction between language and politics.

LANG 450 History of the English Language (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 201, LANG 301. Recommended: LANG 220.

A study of the kinds of change which languages may undergo as an aid to understanding present-day pronunciation, spelling, word formation, grammar and usage in English. Covers the nature and motivation of linguistic evolution, and the methods by which unattested early stages of known languages may be reconstructed. Guided linguistic analysis of literary examples from Old, Middle, and Modern English.

LANG 470 Multilingualism (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 201.

Examines questions such as how two or more languages exist in an individual mind and how bilinguals decide when to switch from one language to the other. Topics range from language contact phenomena (language change, pidgins and creoles) to issues of language politics.

LANG 490 Capstone: Language, Power and Identity (3)

Prerequisite: Successful completion of a minimum of 9 units within the Language track.

American English, its role in American history and such institutions as schools, corporations, government and the media is put into relation to the other languages of America, Native American as well as languages of immigrants and minorities. Topics may include mutual linguistic influence, social pressure and stratification, acculturation, language maintenance and language planning, and the "official language" debate.

TESOL 400: Foundations of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (3)

Prerequisite: LANG 220 or consent of instructor.

Introduces students to theories of language acquisition and methodological approaches to language teaching. Students learn how to plan a lesson, design language learning activities, and assess student learning. Includes mentored practice teaching in UWest ESL Program.

DEPARTMENT OF RELIGIOUS STUDIES

CHAIR

Kenneth A. Locke

FACULTY

Michihiro Ama, Joshua Capitanio, William Chu, Ananda W. P. Guruge, Lewis Lancaster, Bruce Long, Darui Long

The study of religion offers a deep and fascinating exploration into humanity's search for meaning. Even in this secular age all individuals are sooner or later faced with questions about their existence. Does life have meaning? Is there an answer to suffering? What is good? Humanity's attempts to address these questions have left a deep mark on human history and civilization. Even today it is nearly impossible to understand human desires and cultures without reference to the religious traditions that influenced them. Through the study of religion students acquire a deeper understanding of ideas, beliefs and concerns that have influenced and continue to influence human existence.

The appreciation of religious diversity and open academic inquiry is a hallmark of the Department of Religious Studies. The Department is dedicated to fostering an environment that furthers religious understanding between East and West. Students from all religious persuasions (or no religious persuasion) are encouraged to enroll and to bring their own unique and enriching perspective to the study of religion.

Religious Studies at University of the West offers students the unique opportunity not only to academically study Buddhism and the world's religions, but to explore whether these religions' beliefs, histories and concerns offer insight into or guidance for the current human dilemma. Students who complete the Religious Studies programs will be able to

- Summarize and explain the central teachings of Buddhism and the major world religions;
- Comprehend the nature of and engage in the academic study of Buddhism and the world's religion;
- Explain the individual, cultural, and cross-cultural perspectives that shape Buddhism's and the world's religions' teachings and history;
- Contextualize the study of Buddhism and the world religions within a moral/intellectual framework that explores religious teachings on character formation and development;
- Determine whether or how Buddhism's and the world religions' teachings are relevant to issues and concerns in the modern world.

MASTER OF ARTS IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

The Master of Arts in Religious Studies offers students two areas of concentration: Buddhist Studies and Comparative Religious Studies. Students in the graduate program in Buddhist Studies are expected to acquire a critical appreciation and mastery of Buddhist thought and traditions and an increased familiarity with non-Buddhist traditions and contemporary critical theory. Students in the Comparative Religious Studies concentration are required to be familiar with contemporary critical theory in the academic study of religion and the doctrines of different religious belief systems, including a working knowledge of at least two major religious traditions.

Admission Requirements for the Master's Program

1. A B.A. in Religious Studies, Theology, Philosophy or equivalent from an accredited university. Students with a different B.A. must have fulfilled (or must fulfill in their first semester doing the M.A.) the following undergraduate prerequisites:
 - For the M.A. in Buddhist Studies: REL 201: Religions of the East, REL 202 Religions of the West, and REL 301 Fundamentals of Buddhism
 - For the M.A. in Comparative Religions: REL 201: Religions of the East, REL 202 Religions of the West, and REL 300 Dimensions of Religion
2. An official transcript from the institutions/universities where highest degree awarded or last attended;
3. Copy of diplomas for all degrees earned;
4. Where such a degree is not in the field of religion, proof of a comprehensive knowledge of the fundamentals of Buddhism and/or the religions chosen for comparative study. For this purpose, the candidate may be required to take designated foundational courses outside doctoral course work or take a comprehensive examination.

5. Verification of English proficiency (for International Students or non-native English-speaking students)
 - Official TOEFL score report with a minimum score of 79 on Internet Based Test (IBT), 213 on the Computer Based Test (CBT) or 550 on the Paper Based Test (PBT). This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - or; official IELTS score report with a minimum score of 6.0. This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Applicants who are not international students and whose native language is not English are required to take an English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Based on their score on the English Placement Test, students may either enter their degree program directly or be required to further improve their English skills by enrolling in Academic English courses, such as ENGL 100A, English 100B, or other suitable courses. These students usually may concurrently enroll in two courses in their major according to departmental advisement.
 - Students with three or more years of successful participation in a college or university academic program where English was the main language of instruction are not required to submit a TOEFL score, IELTS score or take the English Placement Test.
6. Three letters of recommendation written by people qualified to assess the applicant's abilities and academic promise. Letters are to be sent by those making recommendations directly to the Office of Admissions.
7. A typed, double-spaced essay of 400-500 words in English, written by the applicant describing his/her personal goals and aspirations, achievements, educational and career objectives and stating how enrollment at the University of the West would further those objectives.
8. A non-refundable application fee of $100;
9. Completed Financial Sponsor Agreement or Certification of Financial Resources with an official Bank Verification (international students only);
10. Copies of Passport/Visa/I-94 (international students only);
11. Copies of previous I-20 (transferring international students only).

Graduation Requirements for the M.A. in Religious Studies

1. Completion of 33 semester units, including at least 27 units at the University of the West, with an overall grade point average of 3.0 or higher. Letter grades are required in all courses with the exception of the following, which are graded Pass/No-Pass: Directed Reading and Research (REL 499 and REL 599), the Comprehensive Examination (REL 699), and the Thesis (REL 700).
2. Language Requirement:
 - Concentration in Buddhist Studies:

6 units in a language associated with Buddhist Canonical literature (i.e. Canonical Chinese, Pali, Sanskrit, or Tibetan) are required for the Master of Arts in Buddhist Studies. These 6 units should be completed within the first year of coursework. Language courses below the 500 level are not counted as part of the required 33 semester units. Students who already possess reading proficiency in these languages can take a special written examination to fulfill the language requirement.
 - Concentration in Comparative Religious Studies:

6 units in a research language associated with religious studies (e.g. German, French) are required for the Master of Arts in Comparative Religious Studies. These 6 units should be completed within the first year of coursework. Language courses below the 500 level are not counted as part of the required 33 semester units. Students who already possess reading proficiency in these languages can take a special written examination to fulfill the language requirement.
3. Research Training: Successful completion of a thesis or comprehensive examination. Candidates for the Master of Arts in Religious Studies may elect to complete a Thesis (Plan One) or a Comprehensive Examination (Plan Two).
 - Thesis (Plan One)

Students who elect Plan One must enroll in REL 700 (Thesis Research) at the outset of the semester in which they intend to write their thesis and submit a thesis on a research subject agreed to with the professor who has consented to supervise the project. The thesis proposal must be at least 250 words in length and must include the title and abstract of the subject with a list of bibliographical sources. The Master's candidate must have a Thesis Committee composed of three faculty members (including the student's advisor) approved by the Dean of Academic Affairs in consultation with the student prior to the end of the semester during which the thesis class is taken.

- Comprehensive Examination: Terminal Degree (Plan Two)

The Comprehensive Examination consists of a written set of four questions that are given to the student by an instructor of REL 699 at the beginning of the student's final semester. The student is required to enroll in REL 699 (Comprehensive Examination Research) and to submit the completed examination to the student's M.A. Committee three weeks before the end of the semester in which they intend to graduate. The M.A. Committee must include at least two faculty members, including the instructor of 699, and be approved by the instructor of 699 in consultation with the student. Students may be required to defend their examination answers orally before the M.A. Committee.

Note: Students who complete the Comprehensive Examination rather than a Thesis cannot progress to the Doctoral Program in Religious Studies.

Residence Requirement

After finishing all course work, but before completing the Comprehensive Examination, a student must keep his or her registration active by paying the registration and library fees until the degree is granted. Failure to maintain registration may interfere with residence requirements and may result in having to repeat REL 699 or 700.

Course Requirements for the Master of Arts in Religious Studies

Core Courses (6 units) (to be taken during the first two semesters):

REL 600 History and Theory of the Study of Religion (3)
REL 601 Seminar on Historical and Textual Methodologies (3)

Goals:

Students will acquire knowledge of the tools and theories used for the advanced academic study of religion.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Students will be able to do the following:

- Explain and apply different theories of religion to their academic studies;
- Be able to discuss and understand the complex issues raised by the questions "What is History?" and "What is a Text?"
- Comprehend the nature of and engage in academic research.
- Describe the limits of human knowledge and what this means for the human quest for meaning.

Language (6 units)

Students must begin fulfilling their language requirement within their first year of coursework or as soon as the relevant courses are offered.

Goals:

Students will acquire basic working knowledge of a Buddhist canonical language..

Student focused on Comparative Religious Studies will acquire intermediate knowledge of a research language. They will also gain basic knowledge of a second language.

Student Learning Outcomes:

- Students focused on Buddhist Studies will be able to do the following:
 - Express basic understanding of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of one of the four Buddhist canonical languages.
 - Be able to read easier Buddhist texts with the help of a dictionary.
- Students focused on Comparative Religious Studies will be able to do the following:
 - Express a basic understanding of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of the chosen research language;
 - Be able to read easier texts in the chosen research language with the help of a dictionary.

Additional Course Requirements (24 units)

Note: These courses are to be chosen by the M.A. student in consultation with Director of the MA Program.

- Concentration in Buddhist Studies:

Students must complete 21 units of course work in Buddhism. Students must also complete 3 units in Comparative Religious Studies.

Goals:

Students will acquire deeper knowledge of Buddhist thought, texts and history and comparative religious issues.

Student Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to do the following:

- Express detailed knowledge of an aspect of Buddhist thought;
- Outline and critically evaluate select Buddhist texts;
- Summarize critically a topic in Buddhist history;
- Critically summarize a detailed topic in Comparative Religious Studies.
- Relate at a graduate level Buddhist teachings to modern questions of human nature and character development.
- Explain whether and/or how Buddhist insights may be applicable to the modern world.

- Concentration in Comparative Religious Studies:

Students must complete 21 units of course work in Comparative Religious Studies.

Students must also complete 3 units of course work in Buddhist Studies.

Goals:

Students will acquire deeper knowledge of key issues in Comparative Religious Studies.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Students will be able to do the following:

- Express detailed knowledge of a number of issues in Comparative Religious Studies;
- Critically summarize a detailed topic in Buddhist Studies.
- Relate at a graduate level religious concerns to modern questions of human nature and character development.
- Explain whether and/or how religious insights may be applicable to the modern world.

Thesis or Comprehensive Examination (3 units)

REL 700 Thesis Research (at least 3 units)

OR

REL 699 Comprehensive Examination (3 units)

Goals:

Students will be able to undertake intermediate graduate level research and writing.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Students engaged in Thesis Research will be able to do the following:

- Choose and properly research an academic topic at the MA Thesis level.
- Correctly utilize academic research tools and express their findings in an acceptable style of academic writing.
- Correctly follow the rules of formatting, including proper thesis structure and the correct use of citation and bibliographic conventions.

Students taking the Comprehensive Examination will be able to do the following:

- Properly research answers to four given questions.
- Express their answers to these questions in an acceptable style of academic writing;
- Correctly follow the rules of formatting, including proper thesis structure and the correct use of citation and bibliographic conventions.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (Ph. D.) IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

The University offers two doctoral programs:

(1) Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Religious Studies with an emphasis in Buddhism: This is for advanced research students specializing in the comparative study of Buddhism in relation to another religion, or the intensive study of an aspect of Buddhism, leading to a dissertation. The Ph.D. in Religious Studies is a research degree that prepares students to work at the university level. Research, writing and lecturing skills are developed to the level necessary to participate in professional academic discourse.

(2) Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Religious Studies with an emphasis in Comparative Religions: This is for advanced research students specializing in the comparative study of Religions. It prepares students to work at the university level. Research, writing and lecturing skills are developed to the level necessary to participate in professional academic discourse.

A doctoral degree is awarded on the basis of evidence that the recipient possesses knowledge of a broad field of learning and expert mastery of a particular area of concentration within it.

Admission Requirements for the Doctoral Programs

1. A B.A. in Religious Studies, Theology, Philosophy or equivalent from an accredited university. If the B.A. is in a different field, the student must have at least an MA in Religious Studies, Theology Philosophy or equivalent. If neither criteria can be met, the student cannot be admitted into the Ph.D. program. Student may be admitted into the M.A. programs, but must then meet the M.A. admission requirements.
2. An official transcript from the institutions/universities where highest degree awarded or last attended;
3. Copy of diplomas for all degrees earned;
4. Verification of English proficiency (for International Students or non-native English-speaking students)
 - Official TOEFL score report with a minimum score of 79 on Internet Based Test (IBT), 213 on the Computer Based Test (CBT) or 550 on the Paper Based Test (PBT). This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - or; official IELTS score report with a minimum score of 6.0. This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Applicants who are not international students and whose native language is not English are required to take an English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Based on their score on the English Placement Test, students may either enter their degree program directly or be required to further improve their English skills by enrolling in Academic English courses, such as ENGL 100A, English 100B, or other suitable courses. These students usually may concurrently enroll in two courses in their major according to departmental advisement.
 - Students with three or more years of successful participation in a college or university academic program where English was the main language of instruction are not required to submit a TOEFL score, IELTS score or take the English Placement Test.
5. Three letters of recommendation written by people qualified to assess the applicant's abilities and academic promise. Letters are to be sent by those making recommendations directly to the Office of Admissions.
6. A typed, double-spaced essay of 400-500 words in English, written by the applicant describing his/her personal goals and aspirations, achievements, educational and career objectives and stating how enrollment at the University of the West would further those objectives.
7. Copy of MA Thesis (Only applicable to students who have completed an M.A. in Religious Studies, Theology, Philosophy or equivalent).
8. A non-refundable application fee of $100;
9. Completed Financial Sponsor Agreement or Certification of Financial Resources with an official Bank Verification (international students only);
10. Copies of Passport/Visa/I-94 (international students only);
11. Copies of previous I-20 (transferring international students only).

Admission will be on the basis of an evaluation of academic records, the essay and letters of recommendation by the Admission Committee consisting of the Dean of Academic Affairs, the Chair and/or Assistant Chair of Religious Studies, and the Office of Admissions.

Graduation Requirements for the Doctoral Programs

- 1) A minimum of 63 post-baccalaureate semester units in graduate courses as specified for each candidate by the Doctoral Committee appointed by the Dean of Academic Affairs; no more than 30 semester units in graduate courses may be transferred from another recognized university; for course and distribution requirements, see Section 6 below;
- 2) Fulfillment of the language requirements;
- 3) A minimum grade point average (GPA) of 3.0;
- 4) A Pass (P) in the Preliminary Examination on the student's mastery of fundamental knowledge of the discipline when he/she has completed 18 units of doctoral course work;
- 5) A Pass in the Candidacy Examination, taken when the student has completed a minimum of 51 units of doctoral course work;
- 6) A research dissertation demonstrating critical judgment, intellectual synthesis, creativity, and skill in written communication.

Progress through the doctoral program is determined both by course work and by the successful completion of Preliminary, Candidacy and qualifying examinations. As a means of tailoring the program to the needs and interests of individual students, the number and content of these examinations will be personally determined for each student on an individual and ongoing basis by the Doctoral Committee. Failure to successfully complete any qualifying examination after two attempts in a row may result in termination of the student's enrollment in the program.

Important Note:

Prior to the beginning of the semester in which an advanced degree is to be conferred, the student must have advanced to candidacy for that degree and should have received formal notice confirming candidacy from the Dean of Academic Affairs. The student should consult the departmental graduate advisor to determine which degree requirements, if any, have not yet been satisfied.

Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Religious Studies

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Religious Studies is an advanced research degree meant for those specializing in the comparative study of Buddhism in relation to another religion or the intensive study of an aspect of Buddhism, leading to a dissertation.

Residence Requirement

The Ph.D. degree requires a minimum of three years of full-time graduate education or the equivalent in part-time study. Four to six years of full-time academic work beyond the bachelor's degree typically is required to complete the degree. After finishing all course work, but before submitting his or her Dissertation, a student must keep his or her registration alive by paying the registration and library fees until his or her Dissertation is completed. Failure to maintain registration may interfere with residence requirements and lead to lapse of Candidacy Status.

Language Requirement

- Emphasis in Buddhist Studies: 12 units of study of a Buddhist Canonical language (i.e. Chinese, Pali, Sanskrit, Tibetan) to a level of competence needed to read and translate a sutra text, and 6 units of study of a research language (i.e. French, German or Japanese). Language courses below the 500 series, while covering these language requirements, are not counted as part of the 63 post-baccalaureate semester units required for the Ph.D. Students are expected to begin fulfilling their language requirements in the first year of coursework. Students who already possess reading proficiency in one of these languages can fulfill the requirement by passing a special examination.
- Emphasis in Comparative Religious Studies: 12 units of study in one research language and 6 units of study in another research language (e.g. French, German). Language courses below the 500 series, while covering these language requirements, are not counted as part of the 63 post-baccalaureate semester units required for the Ph.D. Students are expected to begin fulfilling their language requirements in the first year of coursework. Students who already possess reading proficiency in one of these languages can fulfill the requirement by passing a special examination.

Note: STUDENTS DETERMINE WITH THE HELP OF THEIR MENTOR WHICH LANGUAGES THEY SHOULD STUDY.

Preliminary Examination (Not applicable to students who have successfully completed an M.A. Thesis in Religious Studies, Theology, Philosophy or equivalent. Students who have completed an M.A. Thesis need only take the Candidacy Examination)

When the student has completed a minimum of 18 units of doctoral course work, he or she must petition in writing their counselor to take the Preliminary Examination. The student's petition must contain the following:

- 1) The topic of the 35-45 page research paper. This paper must represent scholarly analysis and research relating to one or more courses taken by the candidate;
- 2) The names of three Professors to sit on the student's Doctoral Committee;
- 3) Desired date of the oral examination by the Doctoral Committee.

The research paper must be submitted to the student's mentor at least two (2) weeks prior to the date of the oral examination.

When the candidate has successfully demonstrated a high level of scholarship, the Doctoral Committee will advise him/her either to proceed to study for the Candidacy Examination or, where necessary, to appear for one or more Qualifying Examinations after further study. As a means of tailoring the program to the needs and interests of individual students, the number and content of these qualifying examinations will be personally determined for each student on an individual and ongoing basis by the Doctoral Committee. Failure to successfully complete an examination in two attempts in a row may result in termination of the student's enrollment in the program.

Candidacy Examination

When the candidate has completed a minimum of 51 units of doctoral course work, has fulfilled the language requirements, and has passed the Preliminary Examination and all qualifying examinations required by the Doctoral Committee, he or she must petition in writing their counselor to take the Candidacy Examination. The student's petition must contain the following:

- 1) The names of the three members of the student's Doctoral Committee. At least two of the three committee members must be current faculty in University of the West.
- 2) The three subject fields for the examinations, to be determined individually between the student and members of the Doctoral Committee.
- 3) Desired date of the oral examination by the Doctoral Committee.

The field examinations will be written. Students are expected to consult with their committee members to prepare reading lists for each of the three field examinations, which will serve as the basis for the examination questions. The examinations will take place over a two-week period, and must be taken onsite at the University of the West campus. Each examination will take three hours, and students will not be allowed to consult any books, notes, or the Internet during the examination. Field examinations will be graded "pass," "fail," or "pass with distinction." If a student should fail an examination, faculty will decide if and when it may be repeated; additional work may be required in order to retake an examination.

Students are recommended for the advancement to candidacy by unanimous vote of the Doctoral Committee.

The Report on Candidacy Examination for Doctoral Degrees must be signed by the Committee at the time the Candidacy Examination is concluded.

Following a unanimous favorable vote of the Committee, the student will be advanced to candidacy upon payment of the $25 Candidacy Fee.

Candidacy will lapse automatically if the student loses graduate standing by academic disqualification or failure to comply with the University policy on continuous registration.

A readmitted student who was a candidate must again advance to candidacy and thereafter enroll as a candidate for at least one academic semester before the degree may be conferred.

Dissertation Status

Upon being granted candidacy status, the candidate will be ready for the dissertation phase. A Ph.D. student is required to register for REL 710 (at least 12 units) while working on his/her proposal/dissertation.

Immediately after completing the Candidacy Examination, the successful candidate will be expected to begin work on their dissertation proposal. In the proposal, the student will outline his/her proposed dissertation project, which is expected to be an original piece of research, based on primary sources, that makes a relevant contribution to the student's field of study. The proposal should contain sufficient detail on the project, including: a substantial explanation of the central research problem; a review of previous scholarship on the topic and a discussion of the proposed contributions to the field that this dissertation is expected to make; an account of the research methodology to be employed and the sources to be utilized in the dissertation research; a provisional outline of the form that the finished dissertation will take, including chapter divisions; and a preliminary bibliography of both primary and secondary sources. The cover sheet of the proposal should contain the names of the three members of the student's Doctoral Committee, and it is expected that the student will confirm these members' willingness to serve on the Doctoral Committee prior to submitting the prospectus.

Once the proposal has been submitted, it will be reviewed by the members of the student's Doctoral Committee, and the student will be asked to present their proposal and respond to questions before their committee members. After the proposal is submitted, the committee will decide whether it is to be accepted, accepted with revisions, or rejected.

The Doctoral Committee supervises the student's program, approves the dissertation and conducts the final oral examination. The chair of the Doctoral Committee is the member of the faculty responsible for providing primary guidance for the student's dissertation. Ordinarily, the final oral examination will be given just prior to completion of the dissertation and while the student is in residence during a regular academic session, and will be open to all members of the academic community.

After approval by the Doctoral Committee, the student will make any final revisions necessary and submit at least two (2) copies to the University of the West Library for binding.

Submission to UWest Library and Binding Guidelines

The University of the West Library collects copies of all Ph.D. dissertations completed by UWest graduate students, binds them, and catalogues them for inclusion in the University collection. The student pays for the binding. Students are urged to consult with their advisors well in advance of final dissertation/research project preparation on any departmental need for additional copies.

All dissertations must conform to the following UWest Library submission guidelines:

- Two identical loose-leaf copies must be submitted to the Library, one for circulation and inter-library loan purposes and one for archival purposes;
- Use 8 1/2 inch, acid-free, 20-24lb., white, at least 25% cotton paper. Examples of acceptable paper brands: Crane's Thesis Paper, Permalife, Perma-Dur, Hollinger Acid-Free. Do not punch holes in the margins;
- At least one copy must contain the original signatures of the three members of the Examiners Committee. This copy will function as the Library's archival copy, which constitutes the official copy of the dissertation/research project;
- Submit the copies in a covered box in order to reduce the possibility of damage or loss (Boxes of this kind can be purchased from copy shops, such as Kinko's).
- Attach a check or money order for made out to the University of the West with "Dissertation/Thesis Binding" written in the memo line. For the current cost of binding please consult the Librarian.

(The Library will bind additional copies for the student's personal use for an additional charge. When the additional copies return from the bindery, the Library will contact the student by phone and/or mail and request the copies' prompt pick-up at the Library. The total cost of binding may be submitted in one check.)

The final copy must meet the University’s requirements for style, format, and appearance before the degree can be conferred. Reports must be filed by the deadline published in the semester Schedule of Classes in order for them to be reviewed and accepted in time for the degree to be conferred in that semester.

Course Requirements for the Ph.D. in Religious Studies

Core Courses (9 units) (to be taken during the first two semesters):

- REL 600 History and Theory of the Study of Religion (3)
- REL 601 Seminar on Historical and Textual Methodologies (3)
- REL 605 Research Methods (3)

Goals:
Students will acquire knowledge of the tools and theories used for the advanced academic study of religion. They will gain practical experience in the application of these tools

Student Learning Outcomes:
Students will be able to do the following:
a) Explain and apply different theories of religion to their academic studies;
b) Be able to discuss and understand the complex issues raised by the questions “What is History?” and “What is a Text?”
c) Engage in doctoral level research and writing.
d) Describe the limits of human knowledge and what this means for the human quest for meaning.

Languages (1st Language 12 units; 2nd Language 6 units)

Students must begin fulfilling their language requirements during their first year of coursework or as soon as the relevant courses are offered.

Goals:
Students focused on Buddhist Studies will acquire intermediate working knowledge in a Buddhist canonical languages. They will also gain basic knowledge of a second language.

Student focused on Comparative Religious Studies will acquire intermediate knowledge of a research language. They will also gain basic knowledge of a second language.

Student Learning Outcomes:
Students focused on Buddhist Studies will be able to do the following:
a) Express an intermediate understanding of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of one of the four Buddhist canonical languages.
b) Be able to read more advanced Buddhist sutras with the help of a dictionary.
c) Have a basic knowledge of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of a second language.
Students focused on Comparative Religious Studies will be able to do the following:
a) Express an intermediate understanding of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of the chosen research language;
b) Be able to read more advanced texts in the chosen research language with the help of a dictionary.
c) Have a basic knowledge of the grammar, script, and vocabulary of a second language.

Additional Course Requirements (42 units)

Note: Additional courses are to be chosen by the Ph.D. student in consultation with their mentor.

- Emphasis in Buddhism:
Students must complete 30 units of course work in Buddhism.
Students must also complete 12 units of course work in Comparative Religious Studies.

Goals:
Students will acquire advanced knowledge of Buddhist thought, texts and history and comparative religious issues.

Student Learning Outcomes:
Students will be able to do the following:
a) Express advanced detailed knowledge of aspects of Buddhist thought;

MASTER OF DIVINITY (M. Div.) IN BUDDHIST CHAPLAINCY

The Buddhist Chaplaincy program provides students with the necessary knowledge and skills to excel as Buddhist practitioners working in the field of professional chaplaincy. The program is designed to meet the needs of those who wish to engage in spiritual care and counseling work and become properly trained and certified professionals. The program incorporates the requirements of the Association of Professional Chaplains (APC) by offering 75 semester hours that cover the nine core educational areas specified by the APC. By the end of their training, students will have acquired the following knowledge and skills:

- Knowledge and application of Buddhist values;
- Knowledge of the religions of the world;
- An understanding of how society, culture, language and customs influence religious belief;
- Knowledge of best practices in clinical settings;
- Ability to engage in critical, scholarly analysis of religious beliefs and practices;
- Ability to facilitate and construct opportunities for inter-religious collaboration;
- Knowledge and practical skills for the application of spiritual care and counseling.

Admission Requirements for the M. Div. Program

1. A B.A. in any major from an accredited college or university with a GPA of 2.5 or higher.
2. An official transcript from the institutions/universities where highest degree awarded or last attended;
3. Copy of diplomas for all degrees earned;
4. Verification of English proficiency (for International Students or non-native English-speaking students)
 - Official TOEFL score report with a minimum score of 79 on Internet Based Test (IBT), 213 on the Computer Based Test (CBT) or 550 on the Paper Based Test (PBT). This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - or; official IELTS score report with a minimum score of 6.0. This is applicable only to international students who were educated at institutions where English was not the main language of instruction. In general, all international applicants admitted to the program will also be required to take the English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Applicants who are not international students and whose native language is not English are required to take an English Placement Test administered by the ESL / Academic English Program.
 - Based on their score on the English Placement Test, students may either enter their degree program directly or be required to further improve their English skills by enrolling in Academic English courses, such as ENGL 100A, English 100B, or other suitable courses. These students usually may concurrently enroll in two courses in their major according to departmental advisement.
 - Students with three or more years of successful participation in a college or university academic program where English was the main language of instruction are not required to submit a TOEFL score, IELTS score or take the English Placement Test.
5. Three letters of recommendation written by people qualified to assess the applicant's abilities and promise. Letters are to be sent by those making recommendations directly to the Office of Admissions.
6. A typed, double-spaced essay of 400-500 words in English, written by the applicant describing his/her personal goals and aspirations, achievements, educational and career objectives and stating how enrollment at the University of the West M. Div. Program would further those objectives.
8. A non-refundable application fee of $100;
9. Completed Financial Sponsor Agreement or Certification of Financial Resources with an official Bank Verification (international students only);
10. Copies of Passport/Visa/I-94 (international students only);
11. Copies of previous I-20 (transferring international students only).
12. A two-day, stay-on-campus interview (individual/group) to assess interpersonal skills. A psychological evaluation will also take place.

Admission will be on the basis of an evaluation of academic records, the essay, letters of recommendation, and on-campus interview by the Admission Committee consisting of the Dean of Academic Affairs, the Chair and/or Assistant Chair of Religious Studies, the Coordinator of the Buddhist Chaplaincy Program, and the Office of Admissions.

Residence Requirement

On-campus housing is available to students, but they are not required to live on campus. Students living off-campus should be aware that the requirements are such that it would be very difficult to live too far outside of Los Angeles County and complete this program. The long hours and intensive nature require regular attendance on campus for classes, as do group processes and other events. This program was designed to serve students living locally, and should not be considered a low-residency or "online" program.

Internship Requirements

Students are required to participate in one clinical internship during their studies. This requirement is typically met by completing one unit of Clinical Pastoral Education (C.P.E.). However, another kind of internship may be appropriate depending on the clinical setting in which the student would like to specialize. (Military chaplain candidates, for example, have their own unique training.) The internship will be done under the supervision of the institution the student serves. That institution will report back to UWest on the student's progress.

Practice Requirement

Students are expected to be engaged in some form of meditation/contemplative/religious/spiritual practice for as many hours a week as they are taking credit hours that semester. (For example, 12 credit hours = 12 hours of practice per week.)

Other Requirements

Students should have a plan in place for meeting the other requirements for professional certification with whatever chaplaincy organization serves and supports spiritual care work in the setting they choose to work. By the time the students graduate, for example, they should probably have a written endorsement from their respective senior Dharma teachers, community, or lineage.

The Continuing Education (CE) Department makes the educational resources of University of the West available to a wider community and provides an avenue by which students can take degree level courses without being officially enrolled in a degree or certificate program at the University. Continuing Education courses are offered for a fee and in a variety of formats (intensives, seminars, workshops, etc.) for interested members of the academic community and the general public.

Students can take for credit or audit any degree courses listed under Continuing Education in the Class Schedule each semester. In addition, special certificate programs and courses are offered to the interested CE students.

Students enrolled in Continuing Education courses sign an enrollment agreement which complies with the California Education Code Section 94312 and are afforded all of the same student rights and protections as students enrolled in other programs.

CULTURAL ENRICHMENT PROGRAM

COORDINATOR
Darui Long

Special cultural enrichment courses are also offered to the general public to enrich their cultural awareness and their personal as well as professional growth. The Cultural Enrichment Program makes the educational resources of UWest available to a wider community and provides an avenue by which students can take college level courses without being officially enrolled in a degree or certificate program at the University. Students enrolled in these courses will learn various aspects of Chinese and American cultures in an enjoyable and hands-on way. The courses most frequently offered include Chinese Brush Painting, Chinese Calligraphy, Chinese Zither, Computer Applications, Er-Hu, Floral Arrangement, Tai Chi, and Vegetarian Cooking.

Periodic announcements will be made of the courses available and the schedules. Interested students may join any of the courses offered under this program at any time for a prorated fee. For further information, please check the University web site at www.uwest.edu.

EXTENDED STUDIES PROGRAM (ExS)

An experimental pilot program from 2004 to 2007, Extended Studies Programs now offers courses in Religious Studies and Business Administration through an innovative delivery system. Pre-recorded courses are made available on the web and supported by interactive e-mail (discussion forums) and live chat communications with instructors. Individual students may set their own schedules for viewing the lectures within the directed overall scheduling of assignments. Classes delivered live on campus similarly are “streamed” on-line to selected groups and individuals at several sites in North America and East Asia.

Students outside the State of California and attached to educational institutions may earn credits according to the rules of such institutions. Students already admitted to University of the West programs may also take up to fifty percent of their required credits online through Extended Studies, as credits earned through Extended Studies can also be applied towards their degree study. Students may also register as Continuing Education students under Open Enrollment.

Periodic announcements will be made of the courses available and the schedules. Interested students are requested to refer to the University of the West web site. Financial Aid may be available to qualifying students.

ESL / ACADEMIC ENGLISH PROGRAM

(Affiliated with the Department of English)

English Intensive Program

English as a Second Language (ESL) courses offer students an interactive and meaningful way to learn English in America. The English Intensive program meets 20 hours per week for a sixteen-week session in the Spring and Fall semesters, and for a six-week session in the Summer semester. Enrollment is on an ongoing basis, but students are encouraged to attend complete sessions.

English for Academic Purposes

The English Intensive Program helps students acquire the language skills and cultural understanding necessary for academic success and a fulfilling experience in the United States. Students from a variety of cultural and linguistic backgrounds come together in small classes to study and practice all fundamental English skills: reading, writing, grammar, speaking, and listening comprehension. Throughout the program, the focus of the courses is on English for academic purposes. Following a communicative approach, the program presents the language in meaningful and authentic contexts and integrates the cognitive skills students need to become critical thinkers and independent learners.

Academic English Bridge

English Language Learners (ELL students) who have gained a solid foundation in English but still need academic support in their transition into degree-program work are placed in Academic English courses that help them prepare for the writing and speaking requirements of the college classroom.

Instructors

UWest’s ESL teachers hold advanced degrees in such fields as English, TESOL, linguistics, and cultural studies. Many of them also teach courses in the University’s General Education and Academic English program, which gives them insight into the immediate academic needs of those students who plan to continue their education at UWest or another American university.

Certificate of Completion

At the end of each semester, UWest awards certificates of completion to full-time ESL students who have completed their courses with an average grade of C or better and have not received an F in any course. These certificates acknowledge completion of a semester of ESL courses. ESL courses are neither degree-applicable nor do they count as academic credit.

Attendance Policy

The ESL Program is an intensive language learning program. In order to succeed, students need to attend classes regularly and participate actively. 90% attendance is required to receive a passing grade in any course.

Moreover, students who miss more than 10 hours of a given ESL course during one semester and do not submit evidence of acceptable reasons for such absences may be dropped from the course by decision of the Dean of Academic Affairs. For international students (F-1 visa holders), being dropped from a course may result in their falling below a full course load (defined as 20 hours per week for language training). This, in turn, can lead to termination of the student's I-20. Please contact the International Student Services Officer if you have any questions about this policy.

PACE Program (Program in American Cultural Education)

Throughout the year, UWest offers special programs for people of all ages. The PACE Program is offered in conjunction with the Department of Continuing Education. The tour is designed for groups and combines English teaching with exciting cultural activities and excursions. In class, students are encouraged to speak out as they learn about the United States, its cultures, and customs. Outside of class, students practice what they have learned when they visit nearby cultural centers and popular attractions such as the Getty Center, Disneyland, Hollywood, and the many other exciting sights southern California has to offer.

The ESL curriculum as well as the excursions are tailored to the needs, interests and timetable of each group. For a further glimpse into the American way of life, arrangements can be made for students to live with local home-stay families.
